tisements upon our columns, at the present time, and to enable THE STAR to be circulated at the earliest hour possible each day, advertisers are requested to send in their favors as early in the day as practicable. They must be in hand before 12 o'clock to insure insertion the same day, and they ought to be in as much earlier than that as is possible in each case.

The Avenue Pavement.

Some time ago attention was called, in this column, to the fact that the sample of Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street, showed such marks of rottenness on being taken up, as to give cause for doubt whether it was the proper kind of pavement to be used for Pennsylvania avenue, where under the requirements of the act of Congress, the best pavement possible was to be selected by the government engineers designated on the commission. The contractors were, however, promptly on hand with an explanation that the defects in the sample piece at Tenth street were owing to causes which would not be experienced in laying the pavement on a large scale from Sixth street to Fifteenth street. It was held out, too, as a reason why the work would be satisfactory, that the pavement an advertisement for procuring other contracts throughout the country. A bulky pamphlet was also brought forward in which Gen. Wright, one of the U. S. engineer officers upon the avenue pavement commission, endorsed the Grahamite pavement as combining, better than any other pave ment, "the requisites of elasticity smoothness of surface, freedom from noise, imperviousness to water, freedom from dust, ease of keeping clean, and ease and economy of repair." The same pamphlet also contained a long article from Gen. Gillmore, the other army engineer upon the avenue paving commission, upon the merits and demerits of stone, asphalt, and wood pavements, which the Grahamite company evidently considered to be not only an endorsement of asphalt pavements, but of their particular kind of asphalt.

With these endorsements from the majority of the commission of three members-army engineers of high standing supposed to know what they were about-there was nothing left for the public but to abandon their fears and to conclude, that, not only had the best pavement been selected, but that these distinwas laid in the best manner. But, we regret to say, the misgivings expressed by THE STAR are more than confirmed by the condition of the portion of the Grahamite pavement already laid. Opposite this office, as we write, the pavement on the north side of patches on the surface, that it presents the appearance of a bad case of asphaltic smallpox. And this is the case where it has been laid so recently that the directly opposite, has not been completed. Defective portions of the pavement have already been taken up and replaced at different points, without remadying the matter curious spectacle is presented of a patch inserted in a relaid portion, and this patch or second amendment is itself crumbling

A commission of army engineers to regulate our payements is no doubt a high-toned affair, but we doubt, judging by the specimen here referred to, whether our muchabused District officials ever "bossed" quite so inferior a piece of work. At any rate, we cannot call to mind an in-tance where the pavement on one side of a street had rotted

The proposition to send the Presidential complication to the Supreme Court seems to have one insuperable objection. It would be requisite for that tribunal to make a decision within a month. Now, whoever knew the Supreme Court to decide anything in a month?

PRECAUTIONARY .- Mr. Thomas P. Morgan, president of the board of fire commissioners, made written application to the District Commissioners to-day to employ nine additional firemen temporarily to make the number complete, during the disability of about that number from sickness and other causes, in order to have the force in perfect readiness during this cold snap for any emergency. That this is necessary is demonstrated by the fact that three fires have occurred in this city since midnight up to the time of this writing, with some loss of property. The firemen in their efforts to save further destruction have suffered great hardships. There are not men enough on duty ordinarily to inspire confidence, and of course when the increased danger of fire in cold weather, and the disabling of firemen by arduous duty are added to the usual risk, the force should be kept up to the full numerical strength of the department at least. One or two new companies are much needed.

The Ealtimore Gazetie has it bad. It speaks of the lunch party given by the President yesterday to members of the Cabinet and their wives as "Conspirators in Council." But perhaps it means it in an Offenbachian short time since that, owing to the complications surrounding the Presidential election, all bets would be declared "off." The Hon. John Morrissey, who held, it is said, over a million dollars in bets, has declared them off on the ground that both parties claim the election, and that even when a final decision is reached it will be far from satisfactory to many who staked money on the result. The honorable John is reported as saying that he don't believe there is a man in the United States who can name the President, and if there be any such he would like to bet him $1,000 that he cannot do it. He says that had he kept the money and made a final decision he would have had thousands of lawsuits on his hands. The honorable John, it is almost unnecessary to say, loses nothing by this operation. His "dowcher," as a late United States Senator was wont to call it, is two per cent. of all the money in his hands. Assuming that he holds $1,500,000, his share would

The standing of the District 3.65 bonds in financial circles is shown by the fact noted elsewhere that the New York Mutual Life Insurance Company has sent to this city $1,158,000 coupon D. C. 3.65 bonds for conversion into registered bonds of the same, as a permanent investment. This makes nearly four million dollars in registered bonds issued to date to different holders for long in-

The Senate, by a vote of 54 to 4, has sustained the ruling of Mr. Ferry, president of the Senate pro tempore, declaring the joint rules of the two houses no longer in existence. The only Senators voting against this ruling were Messrs. Merrimon, Maxey, Whyte, and Withers. No less than nineteen Senators made themselves conspicuous by their absence or failure to vote. Of this number thirteen were democrats and six republicans. Thedemocrats who voted to sustain the ruling of Mr. Ferry were Messrs. Bayard, Cockrell, Cooper, Dennis, Eaton, Kernan, McCreery, McDonald, Price, Randolph, and Wallace. Altogether, the vote was a very emphatic expression of the opinion of the Senate on the Important subject under consideration.

A Counter Mine.

As we suggested yesterday would probably be the case, the democratic strategists are ready to meet the flank attack threatened by their opponents by which the House could be prevented from going into an election for President for want of a quorum. The project was based upon the supposition that twothirds of the states are requisite for a quorum, and that as more than one-third of the states represented in the House have a majority of republicans, it would be in their power, by absenting themselves, to prevent a quorum. Then the Senate could elect a Vice President, who would succeed to the Presidency.

But the democrats have been overhauling the Constitution in hot haste, and as the result they declare that it does not provide that there shall be a majority of the members from twothirds of the states, but only that a quorum for the election of President shell consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states. There are not more than one-fifth of the states which have a solid republican delegation. All the other republican states have one or more democratic members, and their attendance is, under the Constitution, all that is necessary to constitute a quorum.

Why not have the Paris fire brigade in all places where people congregate? A dozen well disciplined men in the Brooklyn theater would have saved perhaps all the lives that are now mourned.—[N. Y. Moil.

A good idea. Even two or three disciplined firemen in a theater, with water and hose always ready, could speedily extinguish any fire which might occur before it could do much damage.

Since the governor of Oregon gave a certificate to a democratic elector, the republicans who claimed that the twenty-second joint rule was abolished, and that, in consequence, the Constitution vested the sole power of counting the electoral vote in the presiding officer of the Senate, find this doctrine a kind of political boomerang which returns to plague the inventors. The New York World bows in humble submission before this assumption, and says it sighs to think that the President is, after all, to be elected by a mere technicality. It recommends, however, that all should try and bear th's misfortune like peaceful and loyal citizens, and adds, "Let us turn up the whites of our eyes and submit to the forms of law, remembering that the functions of Congress are not judicial but ministerial."
